

Abstract

Information on genotype environment interaction (GE) is derived from data on 2 yield components (shoot density and shoot dry weight) in 3 Camellia sinensis clones at 3 locations. GE was a significant source of variation for both yield components.